BUSINESS OR PENDING ISSUES BROUGHT BEFORE THE BOARD

Kira Kimball spoke to the commission about the National Diversity Council, which is an initiative that helps organizations recruit diverse employees in an intentional manner. It helps organizations to shape their language and policy to be inclusive. They are looking for 10-13 founding legacy businesses to contribute money to bring the National Diversity Council to South Dakota.

HUMAN RELATIONS DIVISION STATISTICS

There are currently 50 discrimination cases open, and the top three bases are disability, race, and sex. In July the Human Relations Office had 102 calls or intakes related to housing, and 71 calls or intakes related to employment.

So far in 2019, the content of the housing calls and intakes has included:
- 126 about evictions
- 48 about mold
- 35 about landlords not doing repairs

- 23 about bedbugs or roaches
The commission asked if they could make public a list of landlords who illegally evict tenants, or reach out to them. Haggar said he would look into it.

CIVIL RIGHTS UPDATE

The Department of Justice announced a series of settlements to resolve allegations that several California-based mortgage loan providers engaged in national origin discrimination violating the Fair Housing Act by targeting Hispanic homeowners for predatory mortgage loan modification services, which interfered with those individuals’ ability to keep their homes.

In December 2018, UPS had a $4.9 million settlement with the EEOC on a religious discrimination complaint. In March, 2019, 19 workers at a UPS plant in Ohio claimed the facility “enabled, tolerated, and purposefully promoted and encouraged a culture of racism and racially discriminatory conduct.”

Ramirez reported that the Department of Justice spoke with him about interest in doing a panel about hate crimes in Sioux Falls.

Wood reported about an upcoming South Dakotans Against Racism meeting at the library.
