4. Review of financial and statistical reports. Financial Report: The preliminary budget report for 2015 shows 95.5% of the budget used. The majority of projects were completed. RBdigital e-content integration will be done in 2020. In the operating budget, the Collections budget was over with additional expenses for online materials including Hoopla and RBdigital. In facilities, two parking lot projects were not completed because of weather. In Operations & Personnel, all full-time positions are filled; some part-time positions are currently open. Program Support includes the Reading Bridge tutoring program, Family Place, and all programming. In the Capital budget, the Prairie West fiber project and Downtown AV equipment project were completed. Projects that are not completed will roll-over into 2020. Hartzler asked if money was no object, what are the library’s priorities? Fick replied, Personnel, then Collections, then Space. Rosenthal asked about the impact of technology on libraries in the future – in collections is the shift to electronic or print? Fick and staff replied eBooks are being used more by older generations. Youth continue to use the print collection. Audiobooks are also becoming important. 18-24 is the age group that is coming as being high users of eAudio books. Moving into an age where eAudio is considered on an equal weight with print as “reading.” RBdigital was the right move to help meet users. However, books are not going away. In the longer term, Rosenthal encouraged Fick to consider the impact of screens and digital content. Fick shared information on the impact of streaming video. Use of the DVD collection has dropped: a snapshot of a day in December – 3500 DVDs checked out in 2018 vs 2500 checked out in 2019.

The Statistical Report was reviewed. The following observations were shared. The number of active cardholders is at the highest ever at 103,840. With circulation numbers decreasing, Land asked about program numbers. 2019 had a decline in overall attendance, as well as a decrease in programs offered. Programs with low attendance, but high preparation time and costs were dropped this year.
